

Garden Event

2-25-24, 1-4:30pm, Reading the Weeds with Nance Klehm, Arlington Garden, Pasadena 91105

Description = "Learn how to read the weeds! In this hands-on botanical workshop taught by Nancy Klehm, participants will learn about the identification and study of individual weed species and weed communities found at Arlington Garden and what they 'say' about the place where they are growing: patterns of soil structure and health, hydrology, mineral concentrations and imbalances, and potential contamination. Participants will also learn about edible and medicinal uses of certain weeds as well as which make good compost additives!" Nance Klehm is an internationally recognized ecological systems designer, landscaper, and horticultural consultant based in Chicago and the Driftless Region of Illinois. She is the founder of Social Ecologies, a land service and restoration provider specializing in building what they refer to as "regenerative systems" through engagement with the surrounding community. Klehm is a prolific writer and author of The Soil Keepers: interviews with practitioners on the ground beneath our feet. Her past and current clients include Huntington Library and Gardens, Metabolic Studio, and Whitney Museum of American Art.

Cost = Tiered pricing, $60-$90

Sign up at <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/reading-the-weeds-w-nance-klehm-tickets-801831759377?aff=press>

Location = Arlington Garden, 275 Arlington Drive, Pasadena 91105

For more information = info@arlingtongardenpasadena.org, 626-578-5434,
<https://www.eventbrite.com/e/reading-the-weeds-w-nance-klehm-tickets-801831759377?aff=press>