

6-5-21 and 6-12-21, 10am, Online Zoom, Spring Garden Hop with the Culver City Garden Club

Description = Culver City Garden Club's 2021 Spring Garden Hop is here! We invite you to hop along with us on a virtual tour of some hidden and not-so-hidden garden gems – on two Saturday mornings in early June.

WEEKEND I - JUNE 5

Our first weekend will showcase three California-friendly niche spaces featuring plants that are native to our beautiful state and locales or grow well here. One of the three high points will be environmental philanthropist Susan and Dan Gottlieb's Gottlieb Native Garden, an urban oasis and ecosystem of multiple flourishing green spaces and habitats -- <http://thegottliebnativegarden.com> . RAFFLE: Susan will generously donate five copies of her book, "The Gottlieb Native Garden: A California Love Story" to our club. These will be entered into a raffle at the end of her garden segment during the tour. Here's more information on her book: The Gottlieb Native Garden A California Love Story: More than 30 years ago, Susan Gottlieb, creator of The Gottlieb Native Garden, started on a journey that would ultimately convert her one-acre property in Los Angeles into one of the premier native gardens in the United States. Today, it's a flourishing ecosystem, containing 200 species of California native plants and trees. As this ecosystem's architect, Susan has cultivated a miniature biome that's a National Wildlife Federation Certified Backyard Habitat, a Xerces Society designated Pollinator Habitat, and an active site for scientific research, education, and collaboration among a wide range of environmental groups and universities. In her talk, Susan shares stories and photos from this urban oasis. Here's an article about the garden featured in the New York Times. All proceeds from the sales of the book go to nonprofit environmental charities. You can purchase a copy at Amazon ($50) to help sustain the fight to lessen our environmental footprint -- <https://www.amazon.com/Gottlieb-Native-Garden-California-Story/dp/0692783393>

WEEKEND II - JUNE 12

Our second weekend will be more of an eclectic mix of gardens from a tropical Balinese-influenced haven to a Memory Garden Collection by a vivacious, young-at-heart 99-year old avid gardener.

Cost = Free.
